- M : OK, Mom. What should I do?

- M : OK, I'll do that now.
- F : Thank you. I have just realized we don't have any coffee, so I'll go out and get some.
- M : There's only a little milk left because I just drank some.

〔問題 B〕

Hello everyone. Today I want to share my story about growing watermelons this summer. We have a small space for vegetables in our garden. My father enjoys growing vegetables there. I often see him gardening with passion, so I decided to try gardening like him.

This spring, I chose to grow watermelons. At first, I was very excited but also nervous because I did not know much about gardening. I planted the seeds, watered them every day, and watched them grow bigger. After some weeks, I finally found a small watermelon. I felt proud and happy because it was the first time to grow something by myself.

I decided to eat it on August 2nd because it was my father's birthday. On that day, however, a bird ate my watermelon, so we couldn't eat it! I was very shocked and sad. Next year, I want to try again, and I will protect my watermelons better. Thank you for listening.

Question 1 : When did she feel proud and happy?

Question 2 : Why did she decide to start gardening?

Question 3 : What happened on August 2nd?
